SUMMARY ON NEW CONTRIBUTION OF THE DISSERTATION

Firstly, the dissertation has presented the definition of standard form contract as well as analyzed the nature and important features of this type of contract to clarify the purpose and differences with other contracts. In addition, the dissertation also distinguishes between the term standard form contract and other similar terms to define the essence, scale and application method under different circumstances.

Secondly, the dissertation has analyzed the factor of establishing the standard form contract, which is a significant point of this type of contract as most of law regulations stipulate standard form contract from the perspective of entering the contract. Furthermore, the dissertation also focuses on the control of standard form contract and considers this the dominant content as standard form contract is a special kind of contract, which must be supervised by different law regulations to ensure the fairness for contract entities. The activity of contract control shall be interpreted from the perspective of controlling both the content and form under pre-supervision and post-supervision method.

Thirdly, the dissertation has analyzed the practicality of law implementation on standard form contract of different entities, from enterprises, state management agencies to courts during the dispute resolution process. Based on that, a number of drawbacks have been presented and become the foundation for law completion petitions. The main petition is to build regulations on standard form contract around the Civil Code 2015, while other specialized laws shall only play the supportive role regarding distinctive points of different contracts.
